Supplementary Figure S3- Example of an advanced severe case of equine pastern dermatitis (EPD) in a neglected heavy draft horse. In the literature, the terms chronic proliferative pastern dermatitis, verrucous dermatitis (dermatitis verrucosa) and chronic progressive lymphedema (CPL) have variably been used. CPL has also been characterized as a distinct disorder with underlying lymphatic dysfunction (de Cock et al. 2003; Affolter 2013; de Keyser et al. 2015).
